

The World Federation for Medical Education is pleased to announce an Internet-Based Seminar on 24 June 2020

WFME perspectives: effects of the 2020 pandemic on the accreditation and practice of medical education

WFME is keen to listen and respond to the concerns and questions of people and institutions about activities affected by the current pandemic. We therefore offer this opportunity to discuss:

1. How does the pandemic affect accreditation of medical schools?
2. What might be the standards for distance learning in medical education?
3. Adapting and augmenting the WFME Recognition of Accreditation Programme

The panel will be:

Professor Janet Grant,
Special Adviser,
WFME
London, UK

Dr Jack Boulet, Vice President for
Research and Data
Resources, FAIMER
Philadelphia, USA

Dr Azim Mirzazadeh,
Associate Professor,
Tehran University of
Medical Sciences,
Tehran, Iran

Professor Michael Field, University of Sydney, Australia and
Assessor to WFME

The seminar will be chaired by Professor David Gordon, President of WFME, with the support of the WFME office.

Who should register for this seminar?

- Anyone with an interest in the accreditation of medical education, including representatives of accreditation agencies
- Medical schools
- Other groups, organisations and individuals with an interest in medical education

Time and date

- 24 June 2020 at 11.00 UTC
- The seminar will last 90 minutes
- Participants may register for the seminar by email to admin@wfme.org, and submit questions and comments by email before the meeting and during the meeting using the chat facility in Zoom.